Apostle John Henry Smith, likewise among the list of speakers desired by the Thatcher family, has been reached at his summer camping ground on Bear lake, and will be on hand for the funeral. It was announced yesterday at the home of the Thatchers that the reason for keeping private the critical condition of Mr. Thatcher was to save him the irritation attendant upon the frequent ringing of the telephone by friends desiring to know of his condition.

Harly scathedra yesterday were solemn and sublime. The choir sang hymns consisting of "Vent Jesu, O Salutaris" at the offertory, and a beautiful "Agnus Dei" after the communion. At the end of the mass the celebrant, Rev. Timothy Brennan, preached an eloquent sermon, his subject being: "Living Up to Our Faith," the text being: "Fight the good fight of faith; lay hold upon eternal life whereunto thou art called."—Sixth chapter of First Epistle of St. Paul to Timothy. The sermon in part follows:
